How can I use wireless Internet at the Library?

Wireless access uses the WiFi standard and the Bradley Beach Public Library offers wireless compatibility to 802.11a, 802.11b, and 802.11g. Most users can simply bring their wireless enabled laptop computer into the Library and turn it on. Most computers will automatically recognize the wireless network. The Library cannot guarantee that your equipment will work with the Library's network.

Wireless access points in the building communicate with your wireless device.

You should be able to connect anywhere within the Library or on the Library's property. The signal in some areas is stronger than others.

When your wireless device receives a signal, a message may appear indicating that the wireless network is available. Then you can open your web browser and begin using wireless Internet.

Can the Library help me configure my computer?

The Library's network is open to all visitors. You do not need any special user names, passwords or encryption settings to connect to the network. However, everyone's computer is different and you are responsible for knowing how to configure your own equipment.

Is my information safe while using wireless?

Remember that your information is not protected while using wireless, unless you are connected to a website that uses encryption. Please keep this in mind if you are accessing private or sensitive personal or business information.
